Recently, we have seen the ruling party turn to the far-right rhetoric. On the one hand, to satisfy the nationalist wing within the party and at the same time trying to satisfy the so-called liberal wing.

On the one hand, we have the bizonal, bicomunal federation solution from the DISY president and on the other “borrowing votes” by the President of the Republic. Trying to rally his far-right voters, DISY has come to the logic of extreme positions, strikes below the waist, and a vicious circle of bipolar nature, characterized by instability, racism and nationalism.

Seeing votes cast on the neo-Nazi party of Cyprus, which was left to hatch, now the ruling party speaks at a low political level, referring to the Turkish Cypriots’ as “lending votes” to AKEL, attacks on the Turkish Cypriot candidate for AKEL and trying to find shelter in the word Mari to justify unjustifiably, their downfall and all the wrong handlings they made by bringing the people to their limits.

In these elections the only party whose positions are consistent with its actions and with a well-staffed ballot is AKEL. AKEL places Cyprus above all, with its positions for a reunited Cyprus, strong positions for the benefit of workers and against fascism. It is the only party with progressive views and crystal-clear positions that do not reinforce neo-fascism in any way. In these elections, we answer both the government and the rise of fascism, by supporting AKEL.

INSTITUTIONAL RACISM COMPLICIT IN SERIAL KILLER KILLINGS

The unprecedented crime of murdering five disappeared women and two children, which has shaken our country for over a month, unfortunately the killer is not the only guilty one, but also the State and the Police itself.

The basis of the whole crime is from the outset the institutional racism and the criminal negligence shown by the police bodies to look for all those women who were unaware of their fate over three whole years, based on the argument that “they are foreigners and they went to the occupied areas”. Indeed, when citizens indicated on several occasions from the very beginning that women and children did not intend to leave the country or even to illegally go to the occupied areas. This institutional racism and their national narcissism came to confirm in the worst way President Anastasiades, who, apologizing to the families of the victims, said the inimitable “apology even though they are foreigners”.

As all this happens, with systemic deficiencies proving to be capable of losing seven people who in fact had to be protected by the state, but weren't, because they were foreigners and women, the Minister of Justice, Mr. Ionas Nikolaou, did not take responsibility, and only after almost 20 days supposedly resigns for reasons of affability. The chief of police does not take any real responsibility, he shifts the blame to the political party system that hindered police. Things he himself said would fight as he assumed duties.

However, the questions are reasonable: Why did Mr. Ionas take so long to resign for reasons of affability? Is the outrage of the people and in the sense that his party is already in trouble a few days before the election forced him to resign? The President does not understand the burden of responsibility for what is happening and states that “he accepted with regret the resignation of Iona”? Why did the chief of essentially was fired, when he should have resigned?

This tragic affair unfortunately is not yet finished, this shows the tragic situation of the ruling party not being able to fight crime that exists in the country but to really govern the country for the interests of all, whether you are a Cypriot or non-Cypriot woman or a man rich or poor. Protecting everyone is a top priority of states of a social nature that aim at the well-being of many, not the chosen ones.

Turkish Challenge in the Republic of Cyprus EEZ and our response

We have been hearing more and more often about the intensity of Turkish provocation and the violation of the Republic of Cyprus's EEZ. It is not, of course, a new phenomenon that Turkey is questioning the sovereign rights of Cyprus in its Exclusive Economic Zone. The new element in the latest attempt is that Turkey sent a drilling rig to the seas in Cyprus, expressing its intention to launch drilling for gas extraction. This move in itself is a very serious development.

At this stage there are some moves that the Anastasiades government needs to do. First of all, the President of the Republic should address the Secretary General of the UN to resume negotiations on the basis of the Guterres framework, from where talks have stopped and on the basis of convergence, but also on the condition that Turkey will stop its challenges in the Cyprus EEZ. The Christofias-Talat convergence should also be reaffirmed in order to remove any excuse from Turkey in relation to the interests of the Turkish Cypriots, which it invokes to take unlawful actions in the EEZ of Cyprus.

On the other hand, within the island, it is important to keep up-to-date and to know what games imperialism plays in order to put a hand on our natural wealth. We must not fall in the trap that NATO will come to protect us and that our security comes through agreements with the United States and through joint military exercises with the murderous state of Israel.
